

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Keep your nose out of other people's business!

Bluntly and inelegantly stated, that's the moral that politicians are drawing from last week's stormy municipal election in San Francisco, which resulted in decisive defeat of the proposed $66,500,000 bond issue for a city-owned power distribution system.

Never before in the history of California politics has such tremendous outside pressure been brought to bear in a city election.

Governor Olson entered the San Francisco campaign with an all-out campaign speech delivered in the city's municipal auditorium, during which he threatened to fire any state employee who opposed the big bond issue.

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes—"Horrible Harold" as San Francisco dubbed him—came all the way from Washington to deliver a speech in favor of the bonds.

And even President Roosevelt was dragged into the campaign for the bonds, although apparently somewhat reluctantly, by a statement issued from Hyde Park.

But San Francisco voters—having seven times previously defeated similar bond issues for a municipal power distribution system—went to the polls and made it eight defeats in a row. Instead of being impressed, they were indignant; instead of being awed, they were ired; instead of voting the bonds, they said "No"—and said it so emphatically that the vote was received by officials in Washington and Sacramento in stunned silence.

The best indication of how San Francisco took to OUTSIDE ADVICE was in the betting odds. Before Governor Olson and Secretary Ickes came to San Francisco to speak for the Hetch Hetchy bond issue, the odds were 2 to 1 that the scheme would be defeated. The morning after they spoke, the odds jumped 3 to 1—and stayed there until election day!

Los Angeles, it might be noted, made no attempt to inject itself into the San Francisco election, but it got involved inadvertently nonetheless. When Secretary Ickes told San Francisco that the Raker Act couldn't be amended to permit the city to make an agency contract for the sale of its power to a private power company, somebody remembered that Ickes had only recently agreed to an amendment of the Boulder Canyon Project Act—and had signed such a contract with Los Angeles and the Southern California Edison. Then the fat was on the fire.

The issue from that point on was: "Why should Los Angeles be Mr. Ickes' pampered darling—and San Francisco just a neglected stepchild?" And if you don't think that question generated political heat, then you don't know San Francisco.

San Francisco is returning to normalcy, but Governor Olson and Secretary Ickes are licking their wounds. They probably wish that they had remembered that Rhythm as it has never been done before was exemplified by members of the Kiwanis club at the meeting Wednesday noon.

NUMBERING SYSTEM FOR HOMES REVISED

The new numbering system for uniform house numbers upon which a committee has been very meticulously working for several months was presented at the chamber of commerce meeting Monday night and was approved.

The chamber officials will have the permanent numbers typed into lists at once, so that records may be straightened out, the president, Dr. W. R. Morgan stated.

This revision was undertaken as the result of requests from utilities and merchants that the addition of new homes and tracts and business buildings had made addresses irregular. Some families were listed at several conflicting addresses.

The chamber earnestly solicits the cooperation of the property owners in making the changes and placing the numbers in readily seen places.

Walter Silberbauer and Jack Murdock of the Campbell Water company were in charge of this work and spent many hours in inspecting, measuring and determining the proper numbers to assign.

Local Store Gets Contract For Mail Boxes

The Leverton Hardware company received the contract to install 150 mail boxes for the defense housing project opposite Moffett Field, J. O. Leverton has announced.

They were the lowest of four competing firms Washington reported in confirming the contract.

Work was begun Tuesday when about half of the post holes were dug. The T-shape standards upon which the multiple boxes will be set, he plans to build at home.

These multiple box standards will prevail, with only one stand carrying a single box. The others will vary from two to eight boxes.

BERT M. HAGEN LAID TO REST TUESDAY

Funeral rites for Bert Martin Hagen, who passed away from a heart attack, Sunday evening in Richmond, were held Tuesday afternoon from the Congregational church with the Rev. J. H. Bennett officiating. Arrangements were in charge of the Rutherford funeral home. Music was provided by James Isherwood, soloist, who sang several hymns and the special favorites of Mr. Hagen, "The Last Roundup" and "Home On The Range." Miss Edith Hughes was the organist.

Pallbearers were Roy Bell, John Bolton, William Forrest, Joe Willard, Frank Keithley and Walter Wassmann, all of Oakland.

Deceased was the husband of Camilla Hagen, of the Cam and Dot Shopp, father of Irene Love Hagen, brother of William Hagen and Mrs. Susan Northfield both of Seattle; Miss Helen Hagen, St. Louis; Mrs. Lucille Johns of Keister, and Mrs. Mary Oliphant of Albert Lea, Minn., and brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich, Campbell.

Hagen was a native of Minnesota, 48 years of age, and although he had not been entirely well for some time his death was quite unexpected, occurring while attending a Lions club party, of which he was a member.

The family moved to Campbell when the dress shop was opened and lived on Parr avenue where he was interested in the chicken business.

The Footlighters Met In Regular Session Tuesday

The Footlighters met Tuesday evening with the newly elected president, LBen Howard, presiding. Reports from the secretary and treasurer were heard and approved. Fifty dollars was turned over to the Campbell community chest as the organizations contribution.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Agostinho were called to Los Banos Tuesday by the serious condition of his mother, whom they have taken to Stanford-Lane hospital for examination and care.

CAMPBELL HIGH P. T. A. UNIT HAS MEETING

Members of the Campbell High School P. T. A. unit met Wednesday afternoon for a very interesting meeting in the little theater of the high school. Mrs. Anthony Jurras, president, presided.

An entertaining program was prepared under the leadership of the Willow Glen unit. Mrs. Winifred Johnson, chairman of the day, introduced the guest speaker, R. G. Felstrom, assistant manager of the State Employment bureau in San Jose. Mr. Felstrom stressed the importance of preparation for securing "that job". Each person should prepare a portfolio of personal qualifications before an interview. Personality is the key factor in the greater majority of cases where it is a matter of success or failure.

S. E. Casaleggio, instructor in industrial arts, gave a worthwhile and enlightening talk on the objectives and activities of the industrial arts program in the school. The most important factor is an understanding of the handling of the tools and the related information to the materials used. The entire industrial program is justified in our industrial age.

A girls' trio composed of Teresa Conetto, Ruth Cousins and Ruth Bohrmann accompanied by Lois Frisch sang two numbers: "Smilin' Through" and "United States of America." This group is under the supervision of C. P. Klassen, music instructor.

Mrs. Henry Jensen, membership chairman, announced a paid membership for this year of 140 which exceeds last year's record. New members were introduced.

The study group program was presented for the month of January by Mrs. E. C. Kittrell, chairman. The exact topic has not been decided.

A report of the turkey whist was given by Mrs. C. D. Fagalde. The next benefit card party is Dec. 4.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the Willow Glen mothers in the homemaking room. All were urged to attend "Fathers' Night" on Dec. 10 at 8:00 p. m.

LET US BE THANKFUL

Never in her 165 years of growth to the greatest, richest nation in history has the United States of America had greater reason to be profoundly thankful than on Thanksgiving Day of this year. In expression of this thankfulness, Ralph H. Taylor, executive secretary of the Agricultural Council of California, seems to speak for all men of all walks of life in his current weekly column, The Farmer's Corner.

"Farmers have their own particular reason for approaching this Thanksgiving Day with gratitude in their hearts, for the American farmer, with all his headaches and problems has a happier prospect than he had a year ago . . . But all Californians and all American's have special reason to commemorate Thanksgiving Day this year. There are better markets for farm products at better prices; in the cities, there is better purchasing power—a better standard of living. But the fact that we have more money in our pockets, more food in our stomachs and better clothes on our backs, is not as important as the fact that we are still the freest, most independent people on the civilized earth. Let's be thankful for the things which are really important:

"Because, as American citizens, we still know liberty as an every-day reality, not just as a far-distant objective which must be won by blood and sacrifice.

"Because, as Americans, we can read any newspaper we like, listen to any radio station we wish, worship in any church we may desire.

"Because we have the right to dream dreams and fashion our own objectives—the right to work for ourselves, or someone else, at any trade or profession which may appeal to us; the right of free enterprise.

"Because we not only have food and shelter in an abundance given to no other people, but because we also have human dignity; because we are free men, with more of liberty—and more individual opportunity—than any other people in our world."

For blessings so precious—and so rare today, let us be thankful.

BELLES-LETTRES AND THE COOTIE

Health Officer Geiger of San Francisco should long be remembered for a masterpiece of lingual elegance in touching upon an unlovely topic. Recently speaking before the Pest Control association, he said:

"Ofttimes serious arguments and ill feelings develop between the school or health department and parents when the latter's children are sent home from school with a polite note stating that there are small grayish specks in their hair, resembling dandruff except that they are motile."

Beautiful, Doctor! Herewith that gem of the mother tongue is recorded for posterity in the files of this newspaper.

SUNSHINE AND YOUTH

Next time a skeptic expresses doubt over the merit of California weather and sunshine, it won't be so hard to silence him.

The impartial inquiries of science, after checking body measurements of 147,000 children in all the country's major geographical areas, find that California's youngsters are both taller and heavier than children in other areas. The study, carried out by U. S. government agencies with the cooperation of research centers, covered the ages of 6 through 14. At the age of 7, California boys were already slightly taller and heavier than those of other states. They kept on increasing their advantage until at the age of 14 they were 10 pounds heavier. The same holds

Jean Holloway Has Outstanding Play of 1940-41

The Writer's Radio Theater for 1940-41, a volume in which are compiled the "Outstanding Plays of the Year," published by Harper and Brothers, has included a play by Jean Holloway, titled "Kathryn Howard."

An excerpt from the introduction to the book states: In 1940 the most noticeable trend in radio drama was an attempt to develop a technique for writing special radio material for stage and screen stars who appeared on the air.

There was an inexcusable lack of new writers in the field despite the fact that new material was in greater demand than ever before. Jean Holloway, young western writer, established her future in radio by her dramatic adaptations for the Kate Smith hour.

The following write-up of the play and author is taken from the book.

The dramatic story of King Henry the Eighth of England, particularly the episode of the execution of his fifth wife, Kathryn Howard, has been done many times on the air, but never as well as in Helen Menken's portrayal on the Kate Smith program. The script has no waste motion, unnecessary wordage, or difficult situations.

Aside from the story matter, the script itself offers an excellent example of a dramatic bit written to be inserted into a full-hour variety broadcast. A complete episode itself, it is written so as not to interfere with the balance of the program but still retaining the full emotion required in the story matter. Too, it is indicative of the growing trend toward adapting special material to suit a particular star.

The writer is perhaps the outstanding discovery of 1940. Only 21 years old, Jean Holloway has already written for practically every major actor and actress in the stage and screen world, and is another proof of the unerring judgment of Ted Collins, the true for the girls. California, clinching another claim to bigness, gains proof that her fabled sunshine isn't just talk. It's a builder of sturdier youth.

Campbell Co-op Enlarges Plant

J. G. Luebben, San Jose contractor was awarded the contract for a $3500 warehouse, to provide more storage space for the Campbell Co-operative dryer as reported by Manager G. K. Schrader.

The new building with an 83x80 feet floor space is being built on the rear of two lots on the west side of South Central. Ground was levelled last week and pouring of cement for the floor was begun Monday. The walls will be of galvanized tin.

The front of the lots has been reserved for two more dehydrator units that will be built next year if materials are available.

The plant had been closed for some time but was reopened this week to redry about 200 tons of prunes that failed to pass the moisture tolerance test. It was closed again Wednesday night and the annual cleaning will be underway and things put in shape for the coming season.

John Breeding was elected president of the chamber of commerce at the election held Nov. 10. Martin Walsh was re-elected secretary-treasurer and directors are Dan Clark, Dr. W. R. Morgan, G. E. Jeffers, Lowell Benson and Cyril A. Peterman.

Kate Smith mentor, to select top-notch talent in all fields.

Born in California, Miss Holloway arrived in New York early in 1940 on vacation from San Jose State College. Within two weeks she had sold to the Collins organization her first radio script—"Kathryn Howard," written expressly for Helen Menken. This was so successful that she was commissioned immediately to write an original script for Walter Huston. Then followed assignments for several motion picture adaptations, and for special material for such well known stars as Gertrude Lawrence, Orson Welles, Henry Fonda, Merle Oberon, and many others.

Applying for a marriage license Wednesday were Hector Daves, 27, of San Jose, and Marlys Fellman, 23, of Campbell.

Another couple who filed intentions to wed are Glindee Merkeley, 22, Vernal, Utah, and Beatrice Loomis, 22, of Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Anderson of Placerville, are house guests of Mrs. Anderson's cousin J. E. Murdock and family. Anderson is superintendent of public works.

Two Campbellites who visited the marriage license bureau in San Jose last week were Chester Yerkovich and Helen Bagoye.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

One Red Rose Forever, by Mildred Jordan.

"Baron" Stiegel, the famous glass maker of the eighteenth century requested "One Red Rose Forever" in June in payment for a chapel he donated to his parish.

A word of warning to my dear readers! This book is a fictional account of his life, his struggles for wealth, his loves and marriages, his financial gains and losses, of Heinrich Stiegel, the German who came to this country in the eighteenth century and built up the world famous glass industry. You will not find anything in the book that will laid you in determining what is Stiegel glass and what is something else. Most of the leading characters are historical, while the situations in which these characters are placed are fictional and imaginary.

This is Mildred Jordan's first try at writing, and from what reviewers from all over the country are saying, her writing career is well under way.

Just a sketch of the subject matter to whet your curiosity. In the middle of the eighteenth century, while a very young man, Heinrich Wilhelm Stiegel came to America with his mother and his small brother. His aim in coming to this country was to make his fortune. He wanted above every thing else in the world to be wealthy. His greatest and earliest passion was for beautiful music and he had mastered the violin to a great satisfaction. He also did a bit

Local Quints Lose To Santa Clara

Bad breaks and weak offense lost a doubleheader for Coach Ralph Noddin's 110 and 120 basketball teams at the Santa Clara gym Thursday, Nov. 6.

The 110's loss of top scoring Bob Amaro probably cost them the S. C. V. A. L. championship. However, Williamson, his "podner" at the other forward position, made a good account of himself. Despite his scoring the 10's wound up on the short end of the 18-20 score.

Displaying an offense which was able to score only eleven points, the 20's went down to defeat by the score of 11-22. Horio was high point man for the Bucs and Bergna and Becker, guards held the opponent forwards to the low score.

of composing which he sent back to his own country to be published. As circumstances altered his life, his music was neglected and all of his forceful energy burned up in amassing his fortune.

Through his first marriage he inherits large holdings from which he builds his glass factory. His life is fast lived. He makes loads of money and loses it—is thrown into prison for not paying his debts—his friends desert him. After his release from prison, his pride humbled, he turns to the simple things in life and finds comfort and relief in the renewed friendship of Diane, a French girl whom he loved, in the early part of his life.

The author has written an interesting tale. It has made the "best seller" list already.

Christmas Seals To Be on Sale November 24

Final plans for the 1941 Christmas Seal sale are nearing completion according to Lowell Benson, seal sale chairman for Campbell.

In the county-wide project Boy Scouts placed Christmas Seal posters, Saturday, in business sections and public buildings in advance of the opening date.

The sale, this year, will open Nov. 24 and extend through Christmas day. Almost seven million seals will be mailed out in Santa Clara county.

Red Cross Goes On The March

American Red Cross went on the march Tuesday in the San Jose Armistice day parade, with an impressive marching unit of uniformed nurses, junior Red Cross groups and men from the branches of the military, symbolizing the cooperation between the mercy organization and the nation's soldiers and sailors, at home and overseas.

The roll call will continue through November with no set goal for memberships, but with the present emergency spread over the world and threatening our own democratic way of life, it is expected there will be an unprecedented sign-up. Twenty million joined the last general call just after the first great war.

This district for the membership drive covers Sunnyvale, Campbell, Morgan Hill, Santa Clara, Cupertino and San Jose.

Campbell residents may join in the roll call by contacting Guy E. Farley.
